FROM THE EDITOR

Looking out the window at the falling snow reminds me that Winter has no intention of letting go just yet so the front cover just seemed right. Hope it doesn't make you shiver. Will March be a lion?

The Navy, Army and Cadets have been busy so far this year with more to come. Enjoy the read. What marvellous people!

I've had several comments about the Images section that we started last month. "Nice idea." "Gives a local, personal and historical flavour to the Newsletter." And so forth. But it's not there this month is it? "Nothing heard" as the old radio call used to say. Let's see how we go next month. Maybe is just wasn't meant to fly? But it can if you want it to.

To our Members ... it's "First In, Best Dressed".* You have booking priority until 13 March. After that, reservations are open to everyone. SEE PAGE 19 FOR DETAILS

Christopher Mercanti is Bruce Power's Manager of Community and Indigenous Relations. He has worked at the Bruce site since 2006, gaining experience in corporate communications, project management, regulatory affairs and Indigenous relations. Chris has a passion for community engagement and loves sharing the Bruce Power story with visitors and external stakeholders alike. He lives in the town of Kincardine with his wife Cynthia, also a Bruce Power employee, and three daughters.

FUEL HANDLING

From the President

With the AGM having been held in February, I first of all, would like to thank our Immediate Past President, Doug McAndless, for his leadership and guidance over the last year. It was a period in which there were a number of unique events, not least of which was the resurrection of the Garrison Garden Party held at HMCS Prevost last June. Now we are looking forward into 2019.

The GCC has a mission to develop and enhance our already positive relationship with the Canadian Armed Forces in London and Region. Recently, there was a meeting with Col Chris Poole, Commander 31 Brigade Group, and his RSM, CWO Talach, to discuss ways that the GCC could help enhance the presence of the Army and also explore ways for the Army open its doors to the GCC. As a result, a fixed Point of Contact (POC) has been established which will assure a positive two-way flow of information. A similar meeting has been requested by the Commanding Officer of HMCS Prevost, LCdr Jeremy Breese, to discuss the GCC relationship with the RCN.

With respect to the GCC itself, we will be doing some tours of interest. As was briefed at the February Meeting, Beth Sayler has organised a day trip to the Ontario Regiment Tank Museum at Oshawa (see page 19). Similar events will be held if there is interest.

The GCC is a unique organisation; unique because of the close relationship that we have with the Army and Navy of the London Region. It is also unique because of the membership. However, as Tom Dean constantly reminds us, we need more members, especially from the business community. They will come to us only through you asking.

The coming year is full of promise. With your ideas and participation, 2019 will be beneficial and enjoyable for all.

Cheers,

Geol

The February Meeting

The main event at this gathering was our Annual General Meeting, which all went quite smoothly. The Executive shuffled positions and Geoff Hutton took over as our new President. This season's starting line-up is on Page 5. It was a pleasure being at 427 (London) Wing, Royal Canadian Air Force Association. It went a long way to enhancing our Air Force theme for February. What a fantastic collection of history and artifacts!

Unfortunately the fierce winter weather kept our guest speaker from Toronto, Colonel Pierre Viens, Royal Canadian Air Force, from making his way to London. Two of our members stepped up and filled the gap - Rene McKinnon gave us a good explanation of 427 Wing and the building, and Doug Action did a presentation on The Jet Aircraft Museum.

The Next Big Exercise

The NAVY

By SLt Chris Niesel

Every year Naval Reserve Divisions are required to plan, organize and host various events in order to ensure that members are able to keep up their qualifications. These activities can range from a small weapons requalification weekend held at Cedar Springs Training Area to a regional boat exercises held in Port Stanley or Toronto. Throughout this training year, HMCS Prevost delivered a range of smaller exercises primarily focused on individual trades. Now HMCS Prevost has been tasked with the planning and organization of South Western Ontario's next Small Boat Exercise.

This exercise will be taking place in Toronto, Ontario - a ways away from Prevost's normal exercise area in Port Stanley. This, of course, will be a bit of a challenge to organize, considering the distance between London and Toronto. The good news, however, is that Toronto's Naval Reserve Division - HMCS York will be lending a helping hand as their infrastructure and location will be the exercise headquarters. Preparations are already underway to ensure that Exercise Gibraltar Strong, named after the lighthouse on Toronto Island, which will take place on April 27-28th will be a great success.

HMCS Prevost's training department has been working tirelessly on the generation of the exercise order and schedules which will lay the foundation for what is to come. Each week members from the planning group meet in our boardroom to discuss recent changes, new points, and ideas. The command team, alongside the training department decided to utilize a holistic approach to staffing this planning group; Key members from every department are present so that they are able to provide their valuable knowledge and training expertise for everyone to take into account. This is especially pertinent for decisions that require the use of a variety of different departmental skills.

During these round table planning meetings, key personnel from HMCS York are also present. The planning on HMCS York's end is lead by Lt(N) Eric Blay, who just so happens to be an HMCS Prevost alumni. Lt(N) Blay first enrolled at HMCS Prevost back at the beginning of his undergraduate degree in political science. After completing his law degree at Western University, he moved to Toronto to start his career, which in turn led him to become an active member at HMCS York. Lt(N) Blay has been invaluable when it comes to supporting HMCS Prevost's planning for Exercise Gibraltar Strong.

HMCS Prevost and HMCS York aim to provide a well-planned exercise that will give our sailors from all trades valuable knowledge and training. Solicitations for hard sea and support trades will be sent out shortly, to ensure maximum participation and that all scenarios are can be staffed appropriately. Scenarios will include components ranging from port inspection divers, boatswain's duties, all the way to intelligence, public affairs, and logistics. It will be a exciting and eventful weekend for all members that are able to participate.

31 Canadian Brigade Group

These articles, normally penned by members of the Brigade, offer a casual look at 31 Canadian Brigade Group. Written without heavy use of military lexicon, acronyms and abbreviations, they support information sharing to groups with diverse backgrounds and will, hopefully, offer a less formal view of the Brigade or examination of specific issues or events.

> C.W. Poole Colonel Commander, 31 Canadian Brigade Group

A Wolseley Winter

By SLt Andrew McLaughlin, PAO, 31 CBG

4th Battalion, The Royal Canadian Regiment (4RCR) led Basic Winter Warfare training at Wolseley Barracks on January 19-20, 2019. The serial included soldiers from 4RCR, 1st Hussars, 31 Signal Regiment and 31 Service Battalion. 31 Canadian Brigade Group (31CBG) soldiers take this course to develop winter survival skills and build on basic military cold-weather operational training. As 31 CBG is responsible for the 4th Canadian Division's Arctic Response Company Group mission task, our soldiers need to be qualified and prepared for these types of missions.

Students must first conduct classroom training and winter kit familiarization within the unit before deploying for a field confirmation exercise. The field portion is broken up into stands that the students rotate through which include navigation, snaring, improvised shelters, snow-defences and later, LOSV (snowmobile) training. In the field, participants are divided into tent-groups and navigate to-and-from stands and hide locations with their kit, weapons and toboggans. The training is intense, physically and mentally demanding, and prepares soldiers for the hardships of winter warfare and Arctic operations like those they will face on the upcoming Operation NUNALIVUT 19.

Exercise Trillium Dragon 19

31 CBG Command Centre Deploys to St. Marys for Emergency Response Exercise

By SLt Andrew McLaughlin, PAO, 31 CBG

31 Canadian Brigade Group (31 CBG) conducted an emergency response exercise from Thursday, February 7 to Sunday, February 10, 2019 in St. Marys, Ontario. This was part of a larger, province-wide exercise, led by the 4th Canadian Division & Joint Task Force Central, headquartered in Toronto, Ontario, and saw 31 CBG deploy the 31 Territorial Battalion Group (31 TBG) mobile headquarters.

Exercise TRILLIUM DRAGON 19 was based on a simulated emergency scenario in Ontario, and 4th Canadian Division's capability to react to it. The exercise was designed to provide realistic responses to potential domestic emergencies and resultant Requests for Assistance (RFA) that could arise during natural disasters like flooding, ice storms, or other types of disasters, and was meant to practice communications between, and the movement of Army personnel to aid Canadians wherever they are needed.

The 31 CBG component of the exercise took place at the St. Marys Pyramid Recreation Centre and residents of nearby communities interacted with personnel in the area. The scenario -- based on a major industrial chemical leak -- provided realistic and current training that helps Canadian Army soldiers hone their command, control and communications skills, and test the ways in which they operate in times of crisis. It also allowed for the various commands under 4th Canadian Division to gauge their ability to work within a larger team, all across the province.

"Exercise TRILLIUM DRAGON demonstrated our ability to deploy a capable and well-led Territorial Battalion Group headquarters, and demonstrate an ability to command, control and communicate with soldiers responding to a crisis scenario in Southwestern Ontario," said Colonel Chris Poole, Commander of 31 Canadian Brigade Group. "The exercise helped to improve and sustain our readiness in support of Canadians wherever – and whenever – we are needed," he added.

Joint Task Force Central (JTFC) is one of six regional joint task forces of the Canadian Armed Forces (CAF). The task forces are situated in key locations across Canada, and conduct CAF continental operations. JTFC has its headquarters in Toronto, and the JTFC Commander, Brigadier-General Jocelyn Paul, who also commands 4th Canadian Division, visited the troops in St Marys and controlled troops across Ontario from the TBG command centre.

Lieutenant-Colonel John Hodgins, 31 Territorial Battalion Group Commander and Commanding Officer of the Essex and Kent Scottish Regiment of Windsor, was proud of his soldiers and thankful for the town's hospitality. "This challenging exercise was an excellent opportunity for our soldiers to test their ability to react to any disaster in the region, and act accordingly." he explained. "We definitely appreciated the support of the local community, their patience and co-operation, and the support of our partners at the Town of St. Marys."

31 TBG is comprised of 31 Canadian Brigade Group soldiers from units all across Southwestern Ontario. Along with command, control and communications tasks, the TBG demonstrated their use of established techniques and procedures through the planning and execution of various tasks. This included equipment and procedural familiarization, operating communications and navigation equipment, building communications skills and command nodes, and conducting intensive after-action reviews on performance.

31 CBG Soldiers Train as Regional Liaison Officers

By SLt Andrew McLaughlin, PAO, 31 CBG

Lieutenant James, Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders of Canada, Princess Louise's) and Lieutenant Assis, (4th Battalion, The Royal Canadian Regiment, completed the Basic Incident Management System course (IMS 200) at the London Emergency Operations Centre (EOC) on February 9, 2019.

The course allowed candidates to improve their roles as RLOs (Regional Liason Officers) for the region of Golden Horseshoe West (Hamilton, Cambridge, Kitchener and Waterloo).

They were nominated for the roles in the Fall of 2018, and after completing their training at the 4th Canadian Division / Joint Task Force Central (JTFC) HQ at Dennison Armouries, Toronto, have been in contact with these communities to establish an intelligence-monitoring role.

In the event of a disaster in the region, and the activation of the municipal EOC, they would deploy and immediately begin collecting information for JTFC, "acting as an information highway to enable the Commander to keep up to speed with developing situations on the ground," said Assis.

This role is critical to 31 Canadian Brigade Group efforts aimed at further developing and maintaining a capacity to work in concert with local authorities and first responders in times of crisis, and assist Canadians whenever they are needed.

The CADETS

We are athletes! We are leaders! We are cadets!

Cadets across Southwestern Ontario participated in the area biathlon competition on the weekend of January 19-20, 2019 at Nordic Highlands. The competition brings together youth from across the area to compete as both individuals and teams to determine those who will move on to the regional (Provincial) level. This year, Southwestern Ontario sent a record number of cadets including 86 athletes at the area level and 27 cadet and adult staff from 11 different cadet corps/squadrons. From this incredible turnout, 20 cadet athletes moved on to compete at the Regional level. Cadet Joshua Cook, from 1596 Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps in Kitchener has been selected as a cadet official for the Cadet National Biathlon Competition Championship taking place in Prince Edward Island March 4th to 8th, 2019.

This is the first year that cadets themselves participated as coaches and officials alongside the adult staff, putting these senior cadets and experienced biathletes in a leadership role. As cadets progress through the program, the goal is to give them increasing levels of responsibility, challenge, and most importantly leadership. Youth leading youth is integral to their success and it ensures that we are developing positive contributors to their communities now and into adulthood. These are the skills that they will take with them into any career, whether they choose to join the Canadian Armed Forces or be part of the civilian work industries.

Involvement in the Cadet Program begins with the weekly parade nights in schools, armouries, and legions but the youth soon learn that there are additional opportunities and experiences that complement the training program. Corps and squadron biathlon teams are one example and they further emphasize fun, teamwork as well as one of the program aims: promoting healthy, active living. The Cadet Program makes this as easy as possible providing the equipment, transportation, and in this case, accommodation to allow for maximum participation. Although it is a competition series, the emphasis remains on skill development, fun, and friendships.

These are experiences that cadets will never forget. If you want to get involved or know someone who would enjoy the adventure, visit www.cadets.ca for more information and see what we are up to next on Facebook: www.facebook.com/OntCadets.
